The Trey Marie Story:

Trey Marie Winery was founded by the Dunham Family of Walla Walla, and the Syre Family of Bellingham, WA. The partnership is based first, and foremost, on a love for wine. Both families share a passion for great wine, and after sharing several bottles, decided they should harness the energy coming out of the Walla Walla Valley and start a winery.

Winemaker Eric Dunham has gained much recognition for the handcrafted Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah he has produced for his own cult winery, Dunham Cellars. He now lends his experience and expertise to Trey Marie Winery, which focuses on Bordeaux-style blends of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Cabernet Franc. Trey Marie will gradually add varietals such as Petit Verdot and Malbec to the "Trutina" as well. "Trutina," a Latin word meaning "balance," is the proprietary name we have chosen to call this amazing Bordeaux inspired blend. We will mix it up a bit each year, playing with different Bordeaux varietals. It's Eric's expert nose and palate that ultimately determine exactly what the blend will be for any given vintage. It's definitely an artistic process, and the result is an outstanding, complex, but fruit forward wine that can be approached immediately, but will lay down nicely for 5-7 years.

Why the name "Trey Marie"?

This is usually the first question customers ask when they come to the winery. It was discovered early on in the planning phase of the winery, that the Dunham and Syre families both have several significant women in their families - all of whom are named "Marie." They were able to identify at least three in their immediate families - so the name game began - and we all thought that the idea of "Three Marie's" seemed like a great start for a winery name. "Trey Marie" literally translates to "Three Maries," and we could really drag this out for you if you are interested in the ancient roots of Latin and Indo-European languages...

2002 Crush Highlights:

Crush began a bit earlier than normal in areas of the Walla Walla Valley Appellation. The fruit matured at an easy, steady pace for most of September and October, moving from Walla Walla to the Columbia, then Yakima Valley, with the weather cooperating nicely. Eastern Washington, as a whole, maintained mild temperatures during the day, with lots of sunshine, easing into cool evenings with little frost threat to the hanging grapes. Crush ended a few days later than normal this year as well, making for a loooooong, but successful, harvest season. On a bittersweet note, we say a fond "farewell" to our good friend, and assistant winemaker, Trey Busch. Trey is staying in the Walla Walla area to pursue a head wine-making position in a start-up winery (hey, we'd tell you the name of it if we knew!). No doubt you'll see more from this prodigy. Best of luck, Trey! We thank all those who visited and helped us during crush. Next time, stay longer! With the wines now safely in the barrel, we are gearing up for a busy holiday season here at the winery. Hope to see you in Walla Walla!

Our Wines

Upcoming Release – 2000 Trutina

Available December 1, 2002

42% Merlot, 45% Cabernet Sauvignon, 13% Cabernet Franc

Ripe blackberry, new leather, wildflowers, and sweet violet on the nose lead to a rich yet structured plum and blackberry mouth, teaming with hints of black cherry and mint, riding over finely woven velvet tannins guided by viscous, rich fruit. Approachable now, but will improve for 8-10+ years.

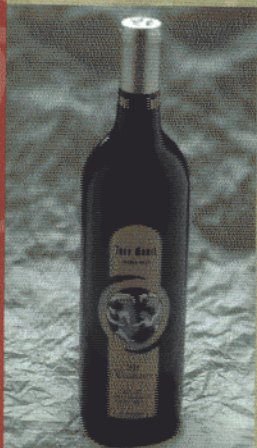

Library Wine – 1999 Trutina

(available to mailing list customers)

Holiday Barrel Tasting

December 7 - 8, 2002

This is the premier tasting event of the year in our sleepy winter wonderland of Walla Walla. It's happening the first weekend in December (always has been, always will be!). Thirty of the valley's unique, boutique wineries will be open for this holiday extravaganza. We deck the hangar with a million twinkling lights, don a 25 foot Christmas tree, and wrap thousands of bottles of presents, just for you to take home. Need more coaxing? How about the Moroccan Lamb Stew served over herbed couscous to accompany your barrel samples of the 2001 Trey Marie "Trutina," as well as the 2000 Trutina new release, and the 1999 Trutina library wine (wow - a vertical!). Mix it up with some holiday tunes and hundreds of gift ideas in the tasting room, and you're sure to mark it on the calendar for next year, too!
